It is easy to get caught up in the rush of everyday life with its commitments and full schedules. Summer can offer us a time to slow down, to rest and reflect in a way we seldom do throughout the busy fall and winter seasons.

For those among us whose grief is new, it is especially important to take the time to nurture your spirit and refresh your body. I will be the first to admit that nurturing my spirit is probably last on my task list; however, I do know that whenever I do take the time to really pause and allow myself to, all aspects of my life are improved. It is well worth the effort to cultivate time for yourself.

As people head off to summer vacations and cottages I hope that you will find some time for yourself this summer and return renewed and refreshed in the Fall.

Sincerely,
Rose Greensides

The tournament is held in memory of Jason N Pearson who was killed in a hit and run near Grand Bend on July 25th, 2009. Heather's Story: Healing Chronic Pain and Chronic Fatigue "My Experience, Strength, and Hope!"

By Heather

"Mommy is going to lay down for a little while"

Migraines impacted my life for years by immobilizing me and making me physically ill. Often I would be curled up in a fetal position in a dark room devoid of sound and light and lying very still. This was difficult as a single parent knowing that my two young boys were probably frightened to see Mommy like this and yet they had the run of the apartment. Sometimes a cold compress would help, but it was hard to get up and change the cloth because any kind of movement would intensify the pain. I still get the same headaches today, though not with the same regularity. I usually end up sleeping upright on the couch, whimpering a desperate prayer to God to relieve me of the pain. I've noticed my thoughts during a headache and they are usually related to traumatic flashbacks. I struggle to try to change these thoughts that I'm dwelling on.

Fatigue and shortness of breath in the beginning would annoyingly occur during routine household chores (washing the floor, doing the dishes, cooking supper) and I can remember many a night telling the boys, "Mommy is going to lay down for a little while" and I would fall into a deep sleep for hours. This still happens sometimes and it is when people are talking to me or I am watching a program with friends. One minute I am awake and the next I am not. Sometimes during long conversations, it feels as though my brain shuts off and then I tire easily. I do best in quiet environments. I am learning to change what I am eating. I am educating myself today on what the brain needs nutritionally to function properly. I was nutritionally illiterate for years living on social assistance. Remarkably a recent study has revealed that low income women are more likely to develop CFS/FM.

I am learning to pace myself, resting before and after some activities, I find that sometimes I am blessed with more energy and can enjoy a walk or the stamina to do several loads of laundry. One must be careful not to overdue during this episodes as it is easily a way to relapse.

13th Annual Charity Golf Classic Recap

On Saturday June 4th at New Dundee Golf and Country Club, BFO-Midwestern Region held its 13th Annual Charity Golf Classic. All participants were supplied with a complimentary prize along with many opportunities to win others on the course and with silent auction bids. We look forward to seeing you at next year's event, the first Saturday in June once again at the New Dundee Golf and Country Club. Thanks to everyone that played, helped out and sponsored. It could not have happened without your help. Anyone interested in getting involved can contact me or Rose Greensides at the BFO Office.
